Bequests

A bequest is a very tangible way of helping the QCWA to continue supporting women and their families in need, particularly those living in regional, rural and remote communities across Queensland.

After consulting with your loved ones, we would gratefully appreciate your bequest.

There are three types of bequests:

1. General bequests leave a sum of money or percentage of the value of the estate to a particular person or organisation.
2. Residuary bequests leaves the remains of the estate after general and special bequests have been paid.
3. Special bequests are particular gifts such as real estate, books, clothing or other items.
